"When Alex came through the door it was as if someone had switched a light on. Her whole persona lit up everywhere. I'll never forget Nurse Alex or Marie Curie. The care isn't just for the person who is terminally ill but for the family as well – it's above and beyond. They are fantastic, absolutely fantastic."

Christine Hoare, with her husband Tom who was cared for by Marie Curie

"The Marie Curie Nurse (a different one each time) was always so kind, gentle and compassionate. It was immeasurably important. I don't think I could have managed without them. Not only did the Marie Curie Nurses help me, but they also helped our sons. All four were staying in our house and they would chat with the nurse. She'd answer any questions they had and it was very valuable to them."

“Without Marie Curie we wouldn’t have had such a special last Christmas with Brenda.”

Just short of their 50th wedding anniversary, Don lost his wife Brenda. Here he explains in his own words how thanks to the support of kind people like you, Marie Curie Nurses were there for his family, and helped them to celebrate one last Christmas together.

“Brenda was first diagnosed with bowel cancer in April 2011. She had an operation and chemotherapy but in October 2012 we were told she had developed lung cancer. Again Brenda had surgery and we thought everything was ok. It was a shock in May 2013 when she had a seizure. We found out she had a brain tumour. She had radiotherapy in October of that year but deteriorated rapidly.”

“By November, I was exhausted looking after Brenda - day and night. I’m in my 70s and only 5’4” and I was having difficulty lifting her. I had moved her bed downstairs and I would sleep in a recliner chair next to her. I got very little sleep, only cat naps. I have three wonderful daughters who helped out but they also had young families to look after. I was absolutely drained.”

“Our lovely district nurse suggested that I ask for help from Marie Curie – I’d never heard of this service before. Two days later a Marie Curie Nurse arrived and I finally managed to get a good night’s sleep. I couldn’t have continued without this support – the nurses were like angels in disguise. They felt like friends and we often talked and laughed together. I could see the difference it made to Brenda. Sometimes she seemed far away but there were moments when her face lit up.”

“The nurses were like angels in disguise. They felt like friends and we often talked and laughed together.”

"Brenda's birthday was at the end of November and we celebrated at home with our daughters and grandchildren. Being able to get a good night sleep made all the difference. We would really have struggled to have Brenda at home for her last birthday or Christmas without the support and care of the Marie Curie Nurses."

"The Marie Curie Nurses took the time to get to know her, they were never in a rush, nothing was too much trouble and everything was done with a smile."

"I was able to make dinner on Christmas Day – I couldn't have done it if I'd been up all night. Knowing that Sue, our Marie Curie Nurse, would be looking after Brenda that night also meant that I got some proper rest for our big family get-together on Boxing Day. And, most importantly, I was able to take Brenda along. Without Marie Curie we wouldn't have had such a special last Christmas with Brenda – it would have been much more stressful."

"By January we could no longer manage Brenda's symptoms at home so she went into the Marie Curie Hospice, Solihull for three weeks' respite care. If she had to go anywhere this is where I would have picked. It's a beautiful place with big rooms and doors leading to the garden. The staff were always friendly, had a smile on their face and nothing was too much trouble."

"Brenda died three weeks later. All the family were with her. We'd been married 49 years with so many good memories. And thanks to Marie Curie she was at home with me for as long as she could be."

100% of the profits made from sales in our catalogue and online shop will go to fund Marie Curie Nurses. Every item purchased helps us provide care to more terminally ill people in your local area.
